MR. ATKINSON'S LETTER.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 8, 1896.-Mr. Edgar Brennan, Toledo, O.-My Dear Sir: I believe every word you say in your let-ter of the 7th inst., comes from the heart results of free silver. There are many ways of studying this question and most of them are mislead I will suggest a course for you:

1. Give me the definition of the word

"deliar" prior to 1873 and what were its equivalents in coin-in other words, how much metal of gold or silver would satisfy 2. Give me the definition of the word "dollar" since 1873, and after you have written out the two definitions hang them up on your wall in n good light, where you can see how one of them has been shriveled Now consider that the bonds of this cour try are all payable in "dollars" of the former definition. That these bonds were originally purchas I with a depreciated paper currency for about 135 in gold for each 110,000 each 1100 bond. That the bonds were not due in 1870 when the "refunding act" took place, and there was no oceasion for that refunding act except to serve the money masters of this continent-bonds were issued from the year 1861 to 1865 and were not due until 1885 and 1895, being 5-20's and Let us remember then, that those who purchased the bonds after the resumption act of 1870 (although such bonds were payahia in coln), purchased them with paper which was not worth coln and probably not worth 80, per cent. of the coin, and let us remember that all those bonds have hond is payable in coin of the standard, July 14, 1870." You will also find all the authorities collected by your own great Senator Matthews in his speech in congress, January 28, 1878. And after you have deliberated on this idea tell yourself what justice there is in changing the definition so that the word "coin" shall only meagold, especially when it is so costly to the American people. Flave you read Towne's speech and studied the tables there given? llave you read the Stanley Matthews resolution Jan uary 28, 1878, declaring that silver sixteen to one is an "honest money" with which to pay our bonds? lluve you read the resolution of the Ohio house of representatives quoted by him to the same effect? It is only one of the various resolutions passed by different legisialive bodies all over the country, and l hope you have noted the fact that McKinlev voted for the Matthews resolution de craling that to be honest which he now says is dishonest. Have you recalled the fact that the coin age of sixteen to one was contained in an act signed by George Washington, and that it never was questioned until 1873, and that values did not depart during all the centuries from the discovery of America to the latter year? I hope you have reflected on broad between the eyes and unless you have considered these features of the situa-tion you may be doing yourself an injustice. MY LORDS, MY LADIES.

On last Monday was witnessed a gathering at this place that had more of the nir of royalty than any gathering ever before seen. It appeared that all the lords and ladies of Richmond and vicinity had turned out to welcome to our midst two men who spoke for the oppression and final doom of the debtor and middle classes of our people. So many double teams and royal livery were never in attendance here before. The golden rod was the flower used in decorating the room in which the speeches were delivered. It was a fit emblem. If the gold standard prevails this people will truly be ruled with a rod. That assemblage ought to open the eyes of some here who seem to be unconcerned about the lot of their curposes theu in circulation will determine the value of that money, and thereby the value of all commodities and debts? If harvest hands are few you have to pay more for them. If dollars are few you must give more wheat, more cattle, more labor to get one of them. The size of the dollar does not change, but it is the wheat in the sack which rises higher, and it takes a cow to bring what should have been the price of a calf. Does not then the value of a dollar purchasing and debt paying power there are in circulation? Is not the value of money, like the value of everything else in this world, regulated by the law of supply and demand? Economists agree upon these ideas. Suppose there was only one hundred thousand dollars of legal tender money in this country with which to do all of its business. Would any one claim that such a dollar was an honest dollar, a dollar containing one hundred cents in silver or gold? While the size and impression of this so-called honest dollar would remain the same would not its value as measured in wheat, cattle, labor, etc., be 'equal to what ten or twelve thousand dollars should be? Then, how much money have we in the United States in eircula tion? Have we enough? If not, how much more do we need? If we need more how shall we get it? In the circular issued by John G. Carlisle, Secretary of the Treasury, July 31, 1896, it is there stated that there is a circulation per capita for the year 1896 of $21.10 and that the population of the United States is 71.390,000. This is of every kind of money, but there is uc such amount in circulation. But for the sake of argument admit that there is What is the most prosperous nation in the world to-day? It is France. Mr. Carlisle states in the same cincular that France has a per capita circulation of to the volume of our circulating money this week--quality poor-prices low. over $910,000,000 to make our per capita circulation equal to that of France. If $35.77 be a good thing for France, would it not be a safe limit to which this connraise its per capita circulation? And we need it now. When our population and business further increases we shall need more. We shall have to in-

This can be easily Select wrappery leaf done by increasing the number of mints, fifty-four millions a year, it would take much as they need. Comparison is often those of the United States. It can not be claimed that any financial system can absolutely change the character of any civilization. It would require a great many other things to make Mexico as prosperous a nation as the United States, but it is true that Mexico is more prosperous to-day than ever before in her history, although she is doing business upon an imperfect bimetallic standard. The iutluence of a volume of currency upon the prosperity of her people will also be seen when it is ascertained from the circular of the Secretary of the Treas ury just quoted that her per capita circulation in all kinds of money is but $4.95. You can accurately ascertain the prosperity of any civilized country in the world by its volume of circulating money. The per capita of gold in the United States according to Mr. Carlisle's circular is $8.41. This estimate is questioned and by many denied as being too large, but for the sake of argument let it be admitted; and if the values of all commodities, of labor and of debts shall be estimated by the amount of gold which we

When the information comes to one, accustomed to the ownership of a home, that he is to lose that home, after rears of toil, and that information is conveyed to such a person's wife and family who have worked hard and whared the toils and troubles of the husband and father -and all this coming upon them in some manner luexplainable, there comes with it sadness, sorrow and distress. When tens of thousands in distress are multiplied into hundreds of thousands, then there is that general feeling that comes as if some great chloroforming process had settled down upon the nation. In the midst of it all we hear the cry of the creditor: "Pay in honest doilars, maintain your credit as a people." The people redonble their energies. They are an honest. They want to do what is right, whether real or seeming, but the task sessions into the hands of their creditors. The result is terrible in its consequences to the Amerlean republic, as like seifish laws have been to all former republies. The census bulletins show that tenantry tu this country is increasing at an alarming proportion, finitely greater than any loss that has occurred to the couraged manhood; it makes less of good eltizenship that those renting bomes in the city of New York are now 94 per cent, of the whole-and this condition rapidly sweeping westward. With this alarming increase in tenantry, with foreign creditors now the owners of millions of acres of our lands, get into circulation? How will you get it without workand billons of dollars of our debts, with an alarming iucrease in the number of inmates in our penitentaries; jails and insane asylums, and an alarming increase in the number of suicides, disproportionate to the increase iu population, all portending the breaking down of our civilization, what do the men ou the other side of this question say in reply to it?

THE ACT OF 1878. They say that the Bland-Allison act of 1878 restored the legal tender character of the silver dollar.

That aet did not open the mints or restore the debtor's option. It noutinally restored the legal tender character of the silver dollar, but in fact did not do so. It provided for its legal tender "except where otherwise provided in the contract." Such a provision delegated to the individual to say what was legal tender money, whereas, before the government had dictated what was legal tender, and provided for it from both metals. The act of ISTS was taken advantage of by the money lender to flood the country with notes, bonds and mortgages payable in gold, and since then billious of dollars of our debts have become payable in gold money, by written contracts. The act of 1878 earried the act of 1873 from elatutory law into the written contracts of the country, They were afraid the act of 1873 might be repealed, and they wished to cloak themselves under the constitutional provisiou providing against the impairment of the obligation of contracts. The act of 1878 is worse than the act of 1873. The debtor, as a rule, has nothing to say when excenting a note. The creditor, as a rule, can dictate the terms of the note. The act of 1878, though presumably restoring the legal tender of silver, gave to the creditor the option as to which of the two moneys he was to be paid iu. When the creditor has the option he demands the dearer of the two metals, and the dearer it gets the more apt he is to demand it. This forces the commercial parity of the two metals apart, whereas, before 1873, the debter had the option, gave it to the weaker metal, if either was, and thus maintained them at a

LARGE COINAGE OF SILVER.

They say there has been a larger coinage of silver since 1873 than ever before The answer is this: Under a redemption monetary sys tem, the quantity of representative money issued, should ot exceed in volume the quantity of redemption money a the country. Not lu the untional treasury, but in the ratiou, among the people; for, it is presumed that if the government needs it, it can borrow it from its eitizens. When a nation borrows from the people of a foreign na-

Mon, it is only a question of time, if long continued, when It will cease to exist as such a nation. (Applause.) When a disproportionate quantity of representative money is issued, it shakes confidence in the ability of the government to redeem lt, and general confusion and pusonnduess may be given to a financial system thereby, So, that, when silver was reduced to the position of repform of representative money had uo effect in building up our stock of primary mouey. Since 1873 the government There is no judgment displayed in buying a costly metal to coin it into token or representative money. It would answer the same purpose to coin our token money from lead, tin, nickel, or other substance. So long as it is redeemable in gold, or made subsidiary to gold, the issnauce of any quantity of it will not restore the foundation of our financial system. (Applanse.)

EXPORTATION OF SILVER AND GOLD. They say that under bimetailism, when there is a difference in the commercial parity of the two metals at the legal ratio, of one, two or three per ceut., the cheaper metal will take the place of the dearer metal and the tatter will be exported to foreign countries.

The answer to that is this: If we are not in debt to forelgn countries at such a time, It is true that most of our silver, if at a premium of three per cent, over gold, as it was just prior to 1873, is shipped to foreign countries in exchauge for gold at three per eeut. premium, and the three per cent, premium obtained for our silver. Where prior to 1873, we received from foreign countries three plause.) Last year we sold to foreign countries at a free coinage valuation, $75,000,000 worth of silver for about $38,000,000, whereas under bimetallie conditions (1872).

we would have received about $77,000,000 for lt. or products-a balaucing of exports and imports-we settle with them in gold or silver. Under bimetallism we ally them in settlement the dearer metal, if either is, Either auswers our purpose for primary money. Under these couditions, prior to 1873, when gold was the dearer, we shipped them our gold, and when silver was the dearer, say, as it was just prior to 1873, at a premium of 3 per cent., we shipped them our silver, and with each dollar shipped, we settled a dollar aud three ceuts' worth of debt. (Cries of "Good, Good!" and applause.) As it is dow, with each dollar shipped we settle only 50 cents of

Thus we see that the dearer metal leaving us is to our advantage, and not to our disadvantage. In the first instance-where we are not in debt-it does not lessen the creases it. In the second instance, it enables us the more readily to discharge our debts to foreign countries, whereas, under a monometaille system, the payment of our dehts is the harder to be made, and deprives us in the exportation of our gold, as is the case now, of the only primary money we have. (Applause.) THE FIFTY-CENT DOLLAR.

On its face it says it is a dollar, but they say it is a fiftycent dollar. The gold dollar, on its face, says it is a doilar, and we say it is a 200-cent dollar. (Applause.) The at 50 cents, will buy as much wheat, cotton or other products not affected by jucreased demand or underproduc-

They say that free coinage of silver is in the Interest of the silver hullion owners. If that is true, then free coinage of gold, which we now have, is in the interest of the gold bullion owners. (Applause.) If there is anything in their argument, they should advocate the an average of about $6 a week. closing of the mints to the free colnage of gold. When a government decides what our money should be made of It decides it, or should do so, for the benefit of society, and when that decision is made it should be made with reference to civilization. He will next pay the smelter that smelted it, the refiner that refined it, and and he will pay the men in their sbirt sleeves, the miners who have mined it, he will pay the owners of the burro trains that packed it down the monatains. He will pay the manufacturer for the machinery that hoisted it out of the ground, and for the powder that blasted it from the earth, and when he is through putting it into eirenlation he will be a fortunate man if he has to cents on the dollar left. (Long applause.)

They say the free coinage of silver will run gold ont

no gold in eirculation among the people. It is in the bank vaults of the large cities. It is cornered. And the goverument is now at the merey of those who own it. I wish to remind you, eitizens of a republic, that no money should be the money of a republican people that does not eircniate among the people of the republic. No republic eau exist as such for a long period whose vital necessity is not in possession of the people. When in the possession sion of a seifish class, it will be used to buil and bear prices tili prosperity among the people is ruined (Appianse). Silver was the money of the people and eirch lated to the very pores of civilization, as It does now as token money, and no money is appropriate to a republican people that does not thus circulate. (Applause.) IMPROVED FACILITIES.

They say that improved facilities is what has lowered

The answer is this: From 1850 to 1873, and especially from 1860 to 1873, was the greatest years of improved facilities this country has ever seen. And, yet, in the face of improved facilities, prices advanced. We had all of the Improved machinery for farming, prior to 1873, except the self-binder, and yet, in spite of these improved facilities and lessening cost of harvesting, the farmers' products lucreased in price. The reason was this: While improved facilities were creating more property, it was also creating a larger production of the two precions the world's markets. (Applanse.) The cost of producrelative quantity and demand therefor of property and their relative quantity, and demand therefor, regulate their relative values. Improved facilities may cause that there is no such thing as overproduction for as long a period as three years, and seldom for two years. The producers of the world have their hands on the pulse of the markets and shift their energies to those things for which there is a demand. If you cannot at once grasp this teaching of ludnstrial history, you can, what I am about to say. It is this: There is no such thing as overproduction when there are tens of thousands of our people going hungry and half elotired. (Long applause.)

Improvements make new demand for labor. Railmanufacturers who make the improvements to the men employed in operating them, multiply the number employed far beyond the number engaged lu making the lamps and tallow eaudies they had superseded.

> EFFECT ON FARMERS. They say to farmers, admitted, wheat is 50 cents, but you can buy as much with that 50 cents as you could with the dollar when wheat was a dollar a bushel, so you

The answer is this: It is true that a farmer can buy before when wheat was $1 a bushel. But he caunot ted States has. (Applanse.) pay his taxes that way. It now takes two bushels and nearly three hushels of wheat to pay as much taxes as one bushel of wheat would have paid in 1873. Whereas, 17,000 bushels of wheat would have paid the president's saiary of $25,000 in 1873, it now requires 100,000 binshels same Congress that increased the President's salary from $25,000 to $50,000 a year that demonetized sliver. > EFFECTS ON WAGES. They say wages have not declined.

Store elerks in the city of Chlcago in 1873 got $12 a week, about an average of that. They are now getting Unorganized labor has falleu proportionately. It is only organized labor that has held up prices, and it has done that in two ways: One is that organized labor is among the first-class mechanies, where experts are required, and the supply of that kind of workmen is limited. But organized labor holds itself up by reason of its of producing enough property to purchase the enhanced finitely small as compared with those who are benefited hrotherhood of men fighting in a common cause. And yet in spite of their organization labor has had wages partially reduced.

Unorganized labor has declined 50 per cent.; and tens In this country. Add the number of workmen organized, unorganized and unemployed, and get your sum total, then divide it into the wages they receive and you have the gold standard, measured with even exactness into the bone and flesh and blood of the laboring classes of the United States. (Applause.)

The labor question is a question of supply and demand, and so long as farming is unprofitable, the people takes it to the mint it will be coined into morey and are gravitating to the cities. And there is an oversupgravitation of wage earners to the country, where they can build their own homes and earn their own living as collect interest on two of the dollars. Because, he would answer, "I can coin my silver into money in the United States, and exchange it for anything those people have, and they produce in that country everything that a man wants, for his necessities or his comfort; it will buy anything there that gold will buy." And such a man would not part with his silver for gold except at par, less the cost of shipping it to tue United States, or, in other words, exchange. (Long, continued applause.) priced, the reverse is true and wealth accumulates in the 000 is in the banks subject to the check of the people on which they are doing business. This is what the reports of the banks show. How is it made up? We have all toid, in this country, about $1,600,000,000 of all forms of money. And yet, with only $1,600,000,000 of money of all kinds in this country we find that there is $4.800,-000,000 being used by the people. How do they get it?

> A. deposits in bank, say, $10,000. B. borrows the $10 000 from the bank, but does not take the money; it is placed to his eredit. Now the $10,000 has swollen to $20,000 ou deposit. The $10,000 is still in the bank. C. comes in and borrows it, and places it to his credit. Now there is $30,000 on deposit. Interest is being paid on $20,000 of it. A. has $10,000 to his credit, the capital in his business, on which he is paying no interest. B. and C. have each $10,000 to their credit as eapltal in their business, and they are both paying interest.

> This is how we find there is $4,800,000,000 on deposit with only $1,600,000,000 in the country. It shows that business demands $4,800,000,000. It shows that bushness is borrowing $3,300,000,000 of it. If it did not need is it would not borrow it and pay interest. The lesson to be learned from this is:

> That the country needs $4,800,000,000 to meet the normal demand for money. It needs it just as it needs a porbial supply of wheat or anything else. If you want to confirm this, take the loans shown by the Treasurer' report at $4,769,879,495. With only $1,000,000,000 in the government, they are loaning three times that sum This money is furnished how? The banks furnish it with the eredit system, by which one dollar is made to circulate in place of three that are needed, and the banks in existence we are paying the banks interest on two dollars. This is the way the banks work the actual volmile of money in existence up to the normal volume. With $1,000,000,000 in existence, the people are using i and paying inferest on more than $3,300,000,000 additional. This interest varies from 6 to 12 per cent. At 6 say that we must have the same books as 12 to most per cent, it is a tax of $195,000,000 annually to support they will pay it to their employes. He will next go + p age prices will double, and you will buy less with your this system in supplying the shortage in our money vor- archies of Europe, it is a proposition that is the

And in this struggle and break themselves, but as a rule it is the people that get lart and the bankers are benefited. So, if we were flooded with all the silver in the world available for use as money we would not have to exceed a normal supply of money. (Applause.) The world has been under the control of the money dealers. The people have been made to sulfer on account thereof. We have never had a normal supply of money, and have had to tax ourseives as a people to the money dealers to conduct the lursiness of the nation. Should the world ever be eman-Opated and an unselfish and intelligent civilization be in control of it the people then living will wonder at the existence of such a period as that in which we live, and will recite with wonder to their children the statement that there was a time when all the business of the world was conducted on a tipancial system, based on twentytwo feet of gold. (Long continued applanse.) SAY SILVER'S VICTORY WILL PRODUCE A PANIC

They say the election of a free coinage President and Jougress will produce a panie.

The auswer is this: As soon as it is known that a free oinage President and Congress is elected, silver will begin to advance. Silver's advance means the decline of advance with silver. Gold will be the only thing that is falling, and falling gold means the depreciation of it and its equivalent. Money will be declining in value, and property will be rising in value. continued cheers.1 CONFLUSION OF THE SPEECH.

This is in a larger sense a question of civil.zat.on. ladividual seltishness crystailized into laws, as I said in opening, has been the cause of despotisms and the mother of monarchies. The history of the world teaches it. Great nations arose in Asia and Africa in the earlier history of the human race, and they rose as high as ours is to-day, as tested by the principles of humanity. And later individual seltishness was crystallized into the laws of those governments, and they fell. The property of the people was accumulated in the hands of a few, and the liberty-loving people fled to the country along the northern shore of the Mediterranean. There they reared again a great republic, which lasted until individual selfshness again got control, and with insidious laws drank up the property of the people as this price-destroying law is doing to-day. A few men came into possession of all the property of the people in the Boman republic, and then the republic fell. Again a liberty-loving people ded from there into the more medern nations of Europe -freedom and liberty, representing lumnauity, has ever found a home only on the fromber of civilization. From the head of monarchy, our forefathers fled and came to the United States, and here they reared a republic where they hoped to just a chain on selfishness and preserve an equal distribution, according to the honest energies of And now we face the same thing here. That spirit of lespotism that has enslayed the world is now here in the Inited States, and by the slow process of impoverishing he people, and through laws that are hard to under taml, we to-day, with our backs to China, with no other country to which to fly, face that same spirit of selfishiess that has enslaved the rest of the world. Republics may not be enduring, but monarchies are not. Monar thies have descended into barbarism. Armenia, Tur key, China, and the natious of Asia and Africa, are all that remain of monarchies except those of modern Eucope, and the same grave into which the ancient nations of the earth have gone is ready to receive the more modried into laws. Seltishness is a consuming tire that mrns and destroys. It will destroy individual character and it will destroy national character. Call it what you will, a dragon, au evll spirit or a devii; it can be apply termed a serpent, with its tail in India, its body in Europe and its head raised in once proud America. (Applause.) Will you fight it, citizens of illinois? (Cries of "Yes, Yes,") Then throw aside politicians. Throw aside those who have a self-interest in asking you for your rotes. Study this question for yourselves and when you have studied civilization and the effects of law on the prosperity of mankind we will then rear here an endurng republic. It will no longer be a question of experineut. We will erect one that will be permanent and enduring, and when we cease to scramble over the things of this earth and pile them up around us, as these millionaires are doing, who now would dictate to you and I how to vote; when we cense that, then we will come to a mand is less on gold, than we can now. (Applause.) To newer and a brighter civilization, in which we will study the principles of humanity and not the principles of selfish interests. (Applause.) And with such a people we will go forward step by step, testing questions by the principle of humanity, and we will make a race of great men and great women, and it will lead to a brighter and a better day. Now, let me say this in conclusion: It is to the ladies here to-day. When the women of this country take up this question of elvlitzation as applied to polities we are going to win. Politicians will go to the rear and the people will come to the front. In the breasts of the women of this country there is a feeling of humanity that is higher than there exists in the breasts of uten who are inured to commerce and traffic. (Applause.) When the women take a hand in this fight there will be an end of white slavery and a new and better civilization for the people of the United States. (Applause.) I thank you presentation of our cause. (Loug continued applause.)

Burn Your Coal Ashes.

How many housekeepers know that ashes can be hurned, and the drudgery, dirt and inconvenience they occasion be in good measure overcome? Possibly thousands, but I doubt it, never having found one. In my bedroom a bright fire has been kept all day and as comfortable a one at night as could be desired in a sleeping apartment without the unpleasant necessity of replenishing it during the night. Yes t has required the emptying of the nedium filled ashpan of residue on-
